ABOUT SAWAI MADHOPUR

Sawai Madhopur - was built as a planned city by Maharaja Madho Singh I of Jaipur (1751 – 1768) and is named after him. [4] Founded in 1763, Sawai Madhopur celebrates its foundation day annually on 19 January. The Sawai Madhopur Lodge, now a hotel, survives as a relic of the days of tiger hunting. The lodge was built in 1936 by Maharaja Man Singh II (1912– 1971) and used as a hunting lodge until his death.

Near By Destinations

Ranthambore National Park

Ranthambore National Park - The Ranthambore National Park is one of the largest national parks in India. It is situated about 11 kilometres (6.8 mi) from Sawai Madhopur. In 1955, it was established as the Sawai Madhopur Game Sanctuary. In 1973, the land became a Project Tiger reserve. The area was renamed the Ranthambore National Park in 1980. In 1984, the adjacent forests were declared the Sawai Man Singh Sanctuary and Keladevi Sanctuary, and in 1991 the tiger reserve was enlarged to include Sawai Man Singh and Keladevi sanctuaries.

Ranthambore Fort

Ranthambore Fort - The history of Sawai Madhopur is closely linked to that of Ranthambore Fort. The date of its construction is unknown. The fort provides an oasis in an area of arid land. In medieval times, it was a defence against forces such as those of Delhi and Agra. In 1296 CE, Rao Hamir held the fort. Notable features of the fort include the Toran Dwar, Mahadeo Chhatri, Sameton Ki Haveli, the 32 pillared Chhatri, Mosque, and Ganesh Temple.

Ganesh Temple

Ganesh Temple - This Ganesh temple is situated on the top of Ranthambore fort on Sawai Madhopur. The fort itself is within the national park. The especially of the temple is that, it is the only temple with trinetradhari (one with three eyes) Ganesh ji.

Chauth Mata Temple

Chauth Mata Temple - This Temple is located on a hill top in Chauth ka Barwada village, 35km from Sawai Madhopur city. Chauth Mata is the Kuldevi of Meena community.

Chamatkarji Jain Temple

Chamatkarji Jain Temple - Chamatkarji Jain temple is located in Alanpur village. The temple dates back to the early medieval period. It is built in the Pancharatha style with main shrine housing the idol of Rishabhanatha.
